Reflections From A Former Student

When I was in school, I always thought about how grateful I was to be homeschooled and take the classes that really spoke to me. Having a place like TFAI where I was able to experience creative opportunities and encouragement, from both teachers and other students, was such a blessing. Now that I'm a teacher, seeing the growth of the community is so rewarding! Homeschool groups like TFAI had brought such a unique learning experience to me, where I was able to take classes I wouldn't have found elsewhere, from teachers who very clearly loved their craft. I understand that drive to learn even more now on the educator side of it. There is something so special about seeing students who are in their element and love what they are learning about. Even more than that, in between classes I get to see so many wonderful interactions and such strong friendships between students. It is so inspiring to hear students enthusiastically share their ideas and work together to achieve their goals. I'm so honored to be a part of this community, and I am beyond excited to see where we go from here!
