Class Description: Chemistry examines the building blocks of life. It answers big questions like “What is matter and what is it made of?” It explores how elements, molecules, and compounds interact at a molecular level.

The class will be a weekly tutoring session that consists of lectures to explain the major topics of study complete with working examples from the textbook, discussion, and answering questions about the material. We will also perform experiments together and write up lab reports. I will collect homework and grade module tests. Students are expected to complete daily reading assignments and turn in homework and tests on time. Grades for homework, lab reports, and tests will be provided to parents monthly.
